FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT.

Office of the Government Statist,
Melbourne, 1st November 1882.

SIR,

I have the honor, in pursuance of the provisions of the 9th section of the Friendly Societies Act 1879 (41 Vict. No. 590), to report upon the proceedings and principal matters transacted by the Government Statist in connection with Friendly Societies, and upon the valuations of Friendly Societies returned to or caused to be made by him during the year 1881.

PROCEEDINGS DURING THE YEAR.

2. Portion of the matters under this head were referred to in my last year's Report. I there gave an account of a deputation which waited upon the Premier of Victoria on the 9th January 1881, to request his sanction to the valuations of Friendly Societies being made at a low charge by an actuary to be permanently appointed to the department of the Government Statist, instead of at a much higher charge by an outside actuary or public valuer, as had been originally contemplated; also of the satisfactory reply of the Premier, which resulted in a regulation to give effect to the change being framed and approved by the Governor in Council, and in the appointment of an actuary to the department for the purpose of making the valuations.

3. The forms, to the number of four thousand, for procuring the annual statements required from Friendly Societies under section 13 (1.) d of the Statute, had, as usual, been sent out to every society and branch in the colony before the year commenced; and the returns to be rendered in pursuance thereof, although not generally sent in by the proper day—viz., the 1st February—were eventually all forwarded, and at a much earlier date than on any previous occasion. It is also satisfactory to state that the inaccuracies they contained were fewer than usual. They were, however, subjected to the customary rigid scrutiny by the ordinary staff of this office, and all errors which could be detected on examination, or on comparison with the audited balance-sheets, were enquired into, and, if necessary, referred back for correction, after which, the matter contained in the returns having been embodied in tables suitable for publication, the whole were printed as an Appendix to the Third Annual Report of the Government Statist, which was dated 1st August 1881.

4. Towards the close of the year, about the same number of forms were duly despatched to the societies for the purpose of procuring the returns for 1881.

5. From the date of his appointment, the actuary, assisted during portion of the time by a staff, was fully employed, first in preparing the forms and tables necessary for valuing, and afterwards in making the valuations. Full particulars of the proceedings of his branch will be found under the head of "Valuations," post.

6. The correspondence which took place between the department and Friendly Societies was as follows during the year 1881 :—

Letters and circulars outwards	3,120
Letters inward	2,425

VALUATIONS.

7. With regard to the valuation of their assets and liabilities, the choice of two courses was open to the societies under the Friendly Societies Act. They might either cause such valuation to be made by a valuer selected by themselves, and afterwards forward his report and an abstract of his valuation to the Government Statist, or they might send the information required for valuing to the Government Statist, who was then to appoint an actuary to make the valuation, and afterwards to send to the society a copy of such actuary's report, and an abstract of the results of his valuation. It was prescribed in either case that the valuation should be made within a period not exceeding five years from the date of the commencement of the Act, or the registry of the society, and that the operation should be repeated at least once in every five years.

8. To give effect to these provisions, public valuers were appointed by the Government, and a code of instructions for their guidance was drawn up by the Government Statist and duly gazetted. A scale of fees for valuations by public valuers, and a higher scale of fees for valuations by an actuary to be appointed by the Government Statist, were also fixed upon and duly sanctioned by the Governor in Council.

9. The fees were perhaps not more than sufficient to remunerate the valuer or actuary for the labor and skill it was necessary for him to bring to bear upon the process of valuation, but the societies considered them higher than they could afford to pay, and, such being the case, it was evident that the valuation clauses of the Statute were likely to fall into abeyance.

10. The society which took action in the matter was the M. U. I. O. O. F., and to its efforts all the other Friendly Societies are indebted for a most important concession. This society was most anxious to ascertain its true financial position, but felt it impossible to have the valuation made unless the cost was reduced. Its managing body, therefore, organized a deputation to wait upon the then Premier (the Honorable Graham Berry) with the view of urging that the valuations should be made at a low rate of payment by an actuary to be permanently attached to the department of the Government Statist.

11. This interview, to which I have already alluded, was fully described in my last Annual Report. It resulted in the Premier's consenting to appoint an actuary as requested, who should make the valuations at a greatly reduced rate of payment, also in his promising to make the requisite pecuniary provision for the payment of such additional officers as might be necessary to give full effect to the wishes of the deputation.

12. In pursuance of this promise, Mr. E. F. Owen, who, in 1878, was transferred to the Friendly Societies' Branch of this department on account of his special qualifications, was appointed as actuary for the purpose of valuing Friendly Societies, and some time afterwards his son, Mr. Edgar T. Owen, who had matriculated at the University, and had made considerable progress in the higher mathematics, was appointed as his assistant, and placed upon the 5th class under the Civil Service Act. The actuary has also had the help of extra clerks from time to time as required.

13. The reduced scale of fees which has been adopted must be considered most liberal to the societies. The payment under it is so low that no society can well make the excuse that expense stands in the way of having a valuation made. Under the new scale the cost of valuing a society of 275 members is £2 3s. 9d.; under the old scale it would have been £12 if made by a public valuer, and £25 if made by an actuary to be named by the Government Statist. It is doubtful whether in any other part of the British dominions Friendly Societies can have their valuations made so cheaply as they now can in Victoria.

14. There can be no doubt that the decision of the Premier was a wise one. Whilst the former high rates existed, if an attempt had been made to enforce the valuation clauses of the Statute, the probability is the societies would not have employed the public valuers, much less have applied to the Government Statist to engage an actuary, but would have been driven to avail themselves of the services of incompetent persons calling themselves valuers, who would have accepted any payment the societies chose to give, and would then have brought out useless and perhaps misleading results. Moreover, by whomsoever the work was done, it would have had to undergo a critical examination in this department before it could be accepted, which alone would have necessitated the constant employment of an actuarial staff, and in the case of the valuation being made by an unskilled person would have occasioned more work than if it had been made in the department in the first instance, and might have led to much trouble and difficulty. When it is considered what benefits the Friendly Societies are the means of conferring, not only upon their own members, but upon the community at large, by providing for the care and sustenance of a very large number of sick, aged, and bereaved persons, and thus relieving the public charities of much of their burden, it will, I believe, be admitted to be a matter of the utmost importance that they should be working upon a sound basis, and not be gradually drifting towards insolvency, points which can be ascertained only by means of reliable valuations, such as this department is now performing, at a certain expense to the State it is true, but small indeed in comparison with the advantages derived from the end attained.

15. Only one application for valuation was made in 1881. This was from Court Ararat, an independent branch of the Ancient Order of Foresters. The preparation by the actuary of the requisite forms for valuing Friendly Societies and other preliminary arrangements occupied some considerable time, during which the Secretary of Court Ararat (Mr. Frederick Scott) was asked to furnish such information as was found to be required to supplement the particulars entered upon the cards, a request, it is only right to state, with which he complied with great readiness and exactitude.

16. As soon as the actuary had completed his preliminary labors, and had received all the requisite data, the investigation into the condition of this society was proceeded with. This involved an examination of the experience of the members in respect to mortality, sickness, and withdrawals, and of the state of the funds and the amount of interest derived from their investment during the five years preceding the date of the valuation; also the construction of tables, which, however, will be available for application to the valuation of other Friendly Societies when required.

17. An abstract of the valuation of Court Ararat is published in Appendix A, together with the actuary's report thereon ; also a letter from the actuary containing an extended explanation of the manner in which the enquiry into the condition of this court was conducted.

18. The actuary's conclusions were based upon the experience of the society during the five years prior to the 31st December 1880 ; after giving due weight to which experience he found that the value of future liabilities in respect to sickness and death claims exceeded the sum of the accumulated funds and of the value of the prospective income applicable to those benefits by £206 14s. 2d.

19. There can be no doubt that the only way to produce a trustworthy valuation of a Friendly Society is to adopt the method pursued by the actuary, and described by him in a statement published in my last year's Report* in the following words :— "To employ generally some suitable standard table, and to modify the results brought out thereby in each individual case, according to the indications supplied by the previous history of the particular society under investigation." The Registrar of Friendly Societies for England, Mr. J. M. Ludlow, who, it may be remarked, exercises in regard to the societies the joint functions exercised by the Registrar and Government Statist in this colony, insists emphatically on the importance of effecting valuations in this manner, a matter which appears to be too often lost sight of by persons valuing the societies in England. In Mr. Ludlow's report for 1879 (p. 14) the following passage occurs :—

> Of the 923 returns from societies connected with affiliated orders, only 17 were made by public valuers (nearly all of whom are in England actuaries by profession), the remainder being made by persons, all of whom, without exception, were connected by membership with one or other of the orders. Speaking generally, it may be said that these last-mentioned valuations can only be considered as showing the bare arithmetical results derived from a direct application of the tables contained in the late Mr. Ratcliffe's Supplementary Report of the Manchester Unity Experience, 1866–70. There does not appear to have been in most cases any attempt whatever made to ascertain to what extent those tables could properly be considered as fairly representing the future financial experience of any particular body.
> * * * It cannot be too prominently stated that the bare application of any set of tables to a particular society or branch can only be considered as the mere noting of the position of such society or branch by an arbitrary standard, which may or may not be a suitable one, and that the valuer's duty is always to take the necessary steps towards ascertaining, where practicable, how far this arbitrary standard of measurement is likely to prove applicable in the case before him.

20. In his report for 1880 (p. 13) the Registrar has again to complain that this obvious principle has been disregarded in the majority of the valuations sent in that year to the Central office entirely. He says :—

> The valuation returns cannot be spoken of very favorably, either as to the manner in which they are made or as to the results brought out. As regards the first point, it would be impossible in many cases, considering the number of valuations sent in purporting to be made by the same valuer, for him to have given any careful attention to the special features of individual societies, all that has been done being to apply in each case the same financial tests, without any regard to whether, in particular cases, the tests applied were suitable.

21. Immediately on the completion of the valuation of Court Ararat, the investigation of the condition of the Manchester Unity Independent Order of Odd Fellows was undertaken. The valuation of this large and important society, consisting of 13 districts, which embrace 148 lodges and about 13,000 members, has been accomplished during the current year, as also has that of several other societies. Particulars respecting these valuations will appear in the Report of the Government Statist for 1882.

* See Third Annual Report of the Government Statist (Parliamentary Paper No. 10, Session 1881), statement following paragraph 22.

22. Besides the societies just referred to, several others have applied to have their condition investigated and have paid their fees, and upon the valuation of these, in their proper turns, the actuary and his staff are at present engaged; as, however, a number of societies had sent in no application, I recently addressed to the secretary of each such society a circular, of which the following is a copy :—

Circular to Friendly Societies.

SIR, Office of the Government Statist, Melbourne, 1882.

I have the honor to remind you that it is prescribed by the Friendly Societies Act 1877 (41 Vict. No. 590) that once at least in the five years after the commencement of that Act, or the registry of the society, every registered society shall cause its assets and liabilities to be valued; and that, as the Act came into operation on the 1st January 1878, the current year (1882) completes the period of five years referred to.

2. It having been decided by the Government that the valuations shall be made in this department, if desired by the societies, and a scale of fees, fixed at a low rate, having been approved by the Governor in Council, an actuary for the purpose of valuing having also been specially appointed, the Government Statist is now prepared to receive applications from societies desiring to have their valuations made.

3. The fee for valuing must, in all cases, be paid in advance, and societies will be valued in the order in which their fees are received. Prior to remitting money, it is desirable that societies should communicate with the Government Statist, in order that the exact amount to be paid may be determined beforehand.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
H. H. HAYTER,
Government Statist.

23. In England, as well as elsewhere, some difficulty seems to be experienced in inducing Friendly Societies to have their financial position ascertained by means of valuation, and legal proceedings against a number of defaulting societies have from time to time been taken. The Chief Registrar says that, notwithstanding every publicity had been given to the requirements of the Statute, "a large number of registered societies had really no idea of what a valuation of their assets and liabilities meant, still less of its uses." He accordingly issued a memorandum "explaining as far as practicable the meaning and purpose of a valuation." It is not believed that a similar amount of ignorance exists in Victoria, still, as some Friendly Societies may not even yet have fully realised the importance of the subject, and as the lucidly expressed memorandum in question applies with as much force to societies in this colony as it does to those in the United Kingdom, I make no apology for subjoining an abstract of the document:—

Abstract of a Memorandum on Valuation of Friendly Societies. (By Mr. J. M. Ludlow, Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies for England and Wales.)

The valuation of a Friendly Society is the taking stock of its engagements, and of the means it has for meeting them. Without it a society cannot tell whether it can afford to go on paying the benefits it has promised, or whether it is on the way sooner or later to break up, and leave its members helpless.

When a society by its rules offers benefits in exchange for certain fixed contributions, it is to be supposed that it looks upon those contributions as being enough to provide for the benefits; otherwise it would be dishonestly holding out promises which it cannot keep.

Now, in dealing with the benefits assured to members of Friendly Societies, there is an important fact to be borne in mind. Taking any number of men or women together, it is beyond all doubt or question that the rate of sickness becomes greater with age, and death more frequent. Accordingly, members of Friendly Societies should in common fairness be charged either an increasing contribution from year to year, as they become more liable to sickness, or, which in practice is found more suitable, a fixed contribution thoughout life, such contribution being somewhat above the amount required to meet the probable claims of the early years of membership, and in the later years sufficient with the surplus of the early ones, properly invested at interest, to meet the claims as they increase with age.

It is too often supposed that a society which has funds in hand is solvent. If the funds at the end of one year are larger than they were the year before it is too often supposed that the society must be prosperous. But it is not so. A trader is not necessarily able to pay all he owes because he has a few pounds in his till. He is not necessarily prosperous because he has more pounds there this year than last. The question is whether his stock-in-trade, his good debts, and other property cover all he may have to pay. He may have twice as much cash in hand this year as last, and yet have become insolvent in the meantime, by loss of stock, by increase of debts and liabilities.

Just so, the solvency of a Friendly Society depends not upon the money it has in hand, but upon whether its existing funds, together with the future contributions for benefits which the members are bound to pay, are enough to balance the benefits which those members have the right to receive under the rules, together with any other expenses and liabilities. The main object of a valuation is the proper answering of this question; and what can be more important to the members of Friendly Societies than that it should be properly answered? If the money a man is paying is not enough to secure him the benefits which he relies on, what is the use of paying it? And how often does it happen, when a man has been paying money for many years to his society, that, just when he most needs its help, he finds out that it cannot keep to its contract with him.

As above pointed out, in order to know whether a society is likely or not to be able to meet all the engagements it has entered into, it is necessary to make an estimate of what the future claims of the members are likely to be, and of what their future contributions are likely to amount to. In other words, having regard to the ages of the members at the time of valuation, we have to try to find out how much sickness they are likely to be subject to, and when they are likely to die, or, as they are termed, their rates of sickness and mortality.

These are matters which have been the subject of much observation and calculation. It has been ascertained that in any large number of persons of the same age, and whose trade or calling is carried on under the same or like circumstances, there will be an average or probable number of days' sickness, as well as an average or probable rate of deaths, for every year of their after life. Starting from this fact, there have been calculated what are called tables of sickness and mortality, which show how many days' sickness and how many deaths are to be expected for each year of life. Moreover, since no prudent society keeps all its money idle in a box, but puts out what is not required for immediate use on some security yielding interest, some rate of interest must be determined upon which the funds may be safely expected to yield in the future, to be added to the value of the future contributions, when these are reckoned in a lump sum. Then, the choice of the rates of mortality, sickness, and interest to be expected having been made, the results of the necessary calculations may be cast into the form of a balance-sheet, as follows :—

Valuation Balance-sheet of ——— Friendly Society as at (any given date).

Liabilities.	£		Assets.	£
To estimated present value of future benefits to existing members ...			By estimated present value of future contributions of existing members
To other liabilities			By funds invested and in hand ...
Balance (being surplus)		or	Balance being (deficiency)

The above is, of course, but the merest outline of the process of valuation, which, in order to be as correct as possible, must take account of various other matters, as the occupation of members (since some trades and callings are well known to be more unhealthy than others), the proportion of members who from one cause or another may cease to continue paying their contributions, &c. Suffice it to say that, in addition to the most important point of choosing the tables most suitable to a particular society, calculations of a more or less complex nature have to be made, which until education in this country is carried much further than it is now among the working class, and especially until the officers and members of Friendly Societies gain a better view of the advantage it must be to them thoroughly to understand the principle upon which their societies should be managed in order to be permanently successful, must be beyond the capacity or the leisure of such officers or members in most Friendly Societies.

The Friendly Societies Act requires all societies to return a valuation "once at least in the five years next after the commencement of the Act," or "the registry of the society," and so again every five years. The obligation is one entirely for the benefit of societies, which, without such periodical stock-taking, are in fact working in the dark, and are often on the road to ruin when they fancy themselves in full prosperity. Bearing in mind the extreme importance of a properly made valuation to the members of a Friendly Society, its cost must be money well spent, and although such cost may often seem considerable when paid for in one sum without previous provision being made for it, it is almost unfelt when duly provided for beforehand, by adding the merest trifle to the yearly contribution for management.

Application of Interest derived from Benefit Fund.

24. In previous Reports I have frequently drawn attention to the fact that a practice existed among certain Friendly Societies of making deductions from the interest realised upon the investment of the Sick and Funeral Fund, for the purpose of paying a commission on the collection of such interest and defraying other expenses connected with the management of the fund. This was in some instances done openly, but in other cases the fact was not to be discovered in the accounts, only the balance being entered after the deduction had been made. I have several times in my Annual Reports condemned this practice, but some societies defended it, and stated it to be, in their belief, strictly legal. Since my last Report was published an instance occurred in the Loyal Melbourne Lodge, M.U., to which an objection was taken by Mr. James Lentell, an examiner appointed by the parent society to inspect the lodge books, whereupon an opinion of counsel was obtained, a copy of which has been kindly placed at my disposal by Mr. Jacob S. Hart, the Corresponding Secretary of the order. The following is an abstract of this opinion :—

Case for the Opinion of the Hon. John Madden, LL.D., M.P.

The following is an extract from the examiner's report upon the books, accounts, vouchers, &c., of the Loyal Melbourne Lodge, M.U. :—

"a. The Sick and Funeral Fund has been charged with 10 per cent. for collection of interest thereon, which I conceive to be a violation of the 109th and 121st General Laws. I am instructed by the Secretary that a different system has this year been adopted, viz., by paying a fixed sum as portion of the Secretary's salary, and the balance made up by allowing 5 per cent. commission for the collection of the interest of the Sick and Funeral Fund. This I hold still to be a violation of the above laws, only on a smaller scale.

"b. There is one item of £10 10s., interest on mortgage No. 32, which was remitted, I am informed, by a resolution of summoned committee. This I consider at the least irregular, and should, in my opinion, either have been granted from the incidental expense fund, or the money raised in some other form and paid to the credit of the Sick and Funeral Fund."

As to clause a—

This refers to a state of affairs existing in many lodges, more particularly in those having large funds in the Sick and Funeral Fund, and these funds invested on mortgage or otherwise. In the Melbourne lodge in particular the practice has been, until lately, to charge a commission of £10 per cent. per annum on the income of the investments of the Sick and Funeral Fund. This income amounted to about £40 per annum, and was paid to the secretary of the lodge for salary for management of the lodge books, &c., collection of subscriptions, and collection of interest on investments. This system was, however, lately altered, and a charge of £5 per cent. made on the interest received to Sick and Funeral Fund for expenses in connection with the management thereof, and £20 a year to the Incidental Fund for management of the lodge business.

As to charge of commission on interest of Sick and Funeral Fund for expenses in connection therewith—

This practice has been frequently condemned by the Government Statist. In report, 31st December 1877, he says—"I deem it my duty to draw attention to the fact that the law is systematically broken by a large number of societies in the matter of taking moneys from one fund to apply to the purposes of another, the fund robbed in this manner being, in almost all cases, the Benefit Fund, and the moneys taken devoted towards defraying the expenses of management."

On 20th November 1879, referring to certain items, he says—"The amount in the 16th line represents only a portion of the payments made under the head of trustees' salary, commission on interest, &c. There is no doubt similar payments have been made in many other instances, and the net interest has been entered after the charges have been deducted. This is only a disguised way of robbing the Benefit Fund, and the practice cannot be too strongly condemned."

Again, in his report dated 1st September 1880, clause 29, Mr. Hayter expresses his opinion "That it is desirable that the Management (or Incidental) Fund should be responsible for the cost of collection, not only because it is unwise to do anything to weaken the Benefit Fund, but because tampering with the interest in the way of deducting commission therefrom or otherwise is liable to open the door to irregular practices."

The laws of order relating to this matter are—

1. General law No. 109 states—"Out of the weekly contributions of each member to his lodge, not less than sixpence shall be paid to the Sick and Funeral Fund, together with such portion of the initiation fee hereinafter provided for and all interest arising from any investment of such fund, and such fund shall be expended solely for payment of the sick and burial of the dead."

2. General law No. 121 states—"Every lodge shall establish a Sick and Funeral Fund and an Incidental Expense Fund, and the accounts of each shall be kept separate and distinct. From the latter fund shall be paid all expenses incurred by the lodge in conducting its affairs, together with its proportionate share of all other expenses of the district and order. And it shall be optional with lodges as to the means they adopt by which to collect from their members the sums required for such expenses, but it shall not be lawful for any lodge to appropriate, even temporarily, any portion of the Sick and Funeral Fund, or the interest arising therefrom, to any purpose except the payments in sickness and the donations at death." The law then goes on to provide the penalties for so using the funds improperly, and declares that no secretary in the order shall be allowed to act as secretary or agent for the trustees of any lodge, district, or the order.

Section 13, sub-section 3, of the Friendly Societies Act 1877 is as follows :—

"In all societies and branches all moneys received or paid on account of each and every particular fund or benefit shall be kept separate and distinct, and shall be entered in a separate account distinct from the moneys received and paid on account of any other fund or benefit, and the moneys belonging to one fund or benefit shall not be used in any manner for the advantage or otherwise of any other fund or benefit."

There can be no doubt but that the actuary, in giving his certificate for the contributions under the general laws, was influenced to some extent by the division of the funds and restrictions upon their use provided by laws 109 and 121.

As to clause b of examiner's report—

It appears that this has reference to a sum of £10 10s., due for interest on a mortgage to the Sick and Funeral Funds of the lodge from a brother of the lodge who had died. When the mortgagor died, had the trustees attemped to realise on the security, a large loss must have resulted to the funds on the deficiency in the security, but the brothers of the lodge, by divers means, collected a sum of money on behalf of the widow and handed it over to her. She, out of this money, paid off a part of the mortgage debt, converting, by this means, what was a bad security and an ultimate loss to the funds into a good security, upon which no loss could accrue. The trustees, however, agreed, in consideration of the part payment of the principal, to remit the sum of £10 10s., then due to the Sick and Funeral Fund as interest, which was sanctioned by the resolution of a summoned meeting of the lodge.

Printed copy case, as submitted to grand master and board of directors, sent herewith ; also volume containing Mr. Hayter's reports.

Counsel is requested to advise—

1. Can the lodge legally charge any commission on the interest collected or any portion of the interest collected on the investments of the Sick and Funeral Fund for the expenses of collection and management of the said fund ?

1. In my opinion the making any deduction from the interest accruing from the investment of the Sick and Funeral Fund to pay for its collection is wholly illegal. It is clearly opposed to the spirit and intention of the Act No. 590, and is also opposed to the express language of the general rules of the order. The Act contemplates the appropriation by societies, to form Sick and Funeral Funds, of certain contributions of not less than a certain amount under various conditions, which amount is ascertained by acturial calculations and experiences to be the least sum which, together with the average rate of interest usually procurable on sound security, will produce with certainty the benefit assured by such fund. The regular addition of the whole interest derivable from such contribution is an indispensable element in realising such actuarial calculations, and therefore, if deductions may be made at discretion from such interest for any purpose whatever, the whole insurance principle involved is reduced to a mere chance result, which may turn out well or may turn out disastrously. If the deduction of part of the interest of this fund, to be applied in payment of the cost of collection, is admissible, so would the deduction of a further portion for payment of the secretary for keeping the account of it when collected, also for paying the cost of superintending and controlling its expenditure, as sick pay, &c., and so the very essence of the fund, as one calculable by way of average, would be annihilated. Such a result as this would be in complete conflict with the intention of the Act, which, by section 8, sub-section (c), provides for the ascertainment of safe tables of contribution (the calculation of which, of course, assumes the integrity of the interest derived from such contributions) by the Government official, and by section 10, sub-section (v), forbids the registration of a society "unless the tables of contribution," properly certified as therein mentioned, are sent to the Registrar as the basis of such registration. In the case put to me, the result would be that after the lodge (by the society) obtained registration on the faith of the tables then lodged with the Registrar, the whole effect intended to be procured thereby by the Legislature would be upset. Again, in my opinion, nothing can be clearer than that the course proposed is distinctly forbidden by general rules of the society, Nos. 109 and 121. The former provides (amongst other things) that "all" interest "arising" from any investment of the Sick and Funeral Fund shall become part of that fund, and such fund shall be expended solely for payment of the sick and burial of the dead. It is ingeniously suggested that these words "all" interest "arising," mean interest remaining after the deduction of cost of collection, &c. ; but this does violence to the language used. Interest "arises" from principal the moment it is due, and even before it is collected ; and, under the language of the rule 109, the instant such interest arises from an investment it becomes part of the fund, and cannot lawfully be taken from it afterwards save for the payment of the sick and burial of the dead. Then rule 121 is very distinct in providing that the Incidental Expense Fund shall be applied to defray all expenses incurred by the lodge in conducting its affairs. There is no part of the affairs or business for which a lodge exists so important or essential as the investment of its funds and the collection of its revenue as a whole. The only use or value of keeping the several funds apart is to keep those calculable by way of average free from any invasion by an expenditure not included in the calculation on which it is based. I think, therefore, the Incidental Expense Fund is clearly charged with the cost of collecting all interest from whatever source accruing ; and I think this is made more certain by the negative words occurring in the same rule (121), which defines the Incidental Expense Fund and its liabilities, "But it shall not be lawful for any lodge to appropriate, even temporarily, any portion of the Sick and Funeral Fund, or the interest arising therefrom, to any purpose except the payments in sickness and the donations at death."

2. Would the trustees be justified in handing over the collection and management of the investments of the Sick and Funeral Fund to a commission agent, and paying him for his services in connection therewith by commission or otherwise, such commission or payment being deducted from the interest of the investments of the Sick and Funeral Fund?

2. It would be lawful, I think, for trustees to appoint a commission agent to collect and manage the Sick and Funeral Fund under their own regular supervision and control, but the trustees would be still responsible, and could not, I think, apply of themselves any of the funds of the lodge or society to the payment of such agent, unless the appointment was made upon the direction of the lodge, and, in any event, the Incidental Expense Fund, and not the Sick and Funeral Fund, would be lawfully chargeable with the cost.

3. Is it legal to use the Incidental or General Fund for any expenses in connection with the management of the Sick and Funeral Fund?

3. I think it is, for the reasons above given. The Incidental Expense Fund is a fund to defray the cost of managing all the business of the lodge or society, and not merely the cost of business peculiarly incidental to itself.

4. Can the trustees charge their legitimate expenses in connection with the management of the Sick and Funeral Fund against the interest arising from the investments of the said fund?

4. I think not.

5. Can the trustees remit any portion of the interest due on investments of the Sick and Funeral Fund, whether requested so to do by resolution of a summoned meeting of the lodge called for that purpose, or otherwise.

And generally to advise upon the case.

5. Under the ordinary law relating to trusts and trustees, a trustee who, bonâ fide and prudently, compounds a debt due to the trust estate, or who, in order to save further loss, or to make the best of an adverse condition of the trust property, abandons rent or interest due, is held to be warranted in so doing, and to be not personally responsible for the loss (Blue v. Marshall 3 D.W. 381 ; Radcliffe v. Winch 17, Beav. 216 ; Forshaw v. Higginson 8 DeG. M. & G. 827). Hence, in the absence of express legislation to the contrary, I think the same rule would apply to the case of trustees of a society acting in the manner stated in the case. And I think the position of the trustees in so doing is much strengthened by their having consulted their cestui qui trustent (the members), who are of course persons capable of judging the matter, and having obtained their approval by resolution. Of course the distinction between this proceeding and that referred to in answer 1 is obvious; the former is a means of reducing to a minimum an imminent loss to the fund, which would otherwise become inevitable, while the latter is merely a direct application of part of the fund to a forbidden purpose.

JOHN MADDEN.

26 Temple Court, 8th November 1881.

25. This opinion being so emphatic as to the illegality of the apportionment of any part of the interest accruing from invested moneys belonging to the Sick and Funeral Fund to the expenses of collecting such interest, or paying any expenses whatever connected with the investments, which is the view I had always taken, will no doubt deter the society which sought the opinion from applying any more of the interest in this manner. Other societies, however, still continue the practice, amongst which I may mention the Ancient Order of Foresters, Melbourne District, the authorities of which, I believe, defend the practice as being sanctioned by their rules, ignoring the opinion of Dr. Madden that it is opposed to the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act, which of course no rules made by a society can override. This society has the merit of showing in its accounts the full extent to which this appropriation occurs, by which I find that in 1881 it was followed in 36 of their branches, which deducted in all from the interest of the Sick and Funeral Fund £117 13s. 8d., appropriated in the following manner :—

26. Since Dr. Madden's opinion has been given, some complaints have been made from societies of the hardship of being obliged to discontinue making the customary deductions from the interest of the Sick and Funeral Fund, especially when the latter was in a good position. Mr. James Jones, a member of the lodge Hope of Richmond, M.U., instances his own lodge, in which over £4,000 is lying to the credit of the Sick and Funeral Fund, and only £10 to the credit of the Incidental Fund. He points out that the more money the former fund acquires the worse it will be for the latter, as the expense of managing the Sick and Funeral Fund will be the greater. To get over the difficulty, he proposes that borrowers on mortgage should be required to pay a registration fee of 5s., a survey fee of £1 1s., and a commission of from ¼d. to 1d. in the pound, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of managing the investments. He mentions that building societies, as a rule, charge fees to borrowers, in many instances much higher than these, and that borrowers pay them readily. The chief objection to this scheme seems to be that it would open the door to an arrangement being made with the borrowers to pay less interest in consideration of their consenting to make these payments, and so the Sick and Funeral Fund might suffer to quite as great an extent as it would if the highest rate of interest had been paid and a commission had been deducted.

Statistics, 1881.

27. The statistics of Friendly Societies for the year 1881 are appended hereto.

28. As usual, some societies did not furnish the returns necessary for making up these statistics until long after the due date (1st February 1882). It is satisfactory to note, however, that returns have at length been received from every society and branch in the colony. This is the third consecutive year in which I have been able to report a similar result.

29. I mentioned in my last Report that the money balances were generally correctly brought forward in the returns, but frequent mistakes occurred in stating the number of members ; the sum of the members at the beginning of and those who joined during the year, less those who died and left during the year, often not agreeing with the number carried forward at the end of the year. As similar discrepancies were found to exist in the present returns, I have looked into the matter, which is one of some importance, and have discovered that it generally arises from a reluctance on the part of secretaries to write off members whose payments are in arrear, although the time may have passed when, by the rules, their connection with the society should have ceased, there being apparently a general disposition to give unfinancial members a chance to redeem their back payments and again return to the society ; the consequence being that such members are allowed to remain on the books for perhaps a year or two, after which, if they do not pay, they are allowed to drop out, when, the date of their last payment having been so remote, it is not remembered that their secession had not been previously reported.

30. I need scarcely point out that, if the number of members is incorrectly returned, all calculations based upon the sickness, mortality, &c., are erroneous and misleading; but, apart from this, it is right that societies should realise that one of the greatest elements of strength to the Friendly Societies in Victoria is the fact of secessions taking place, and that, if it had not been for this, few, if any, of the societies could have continued to exist without largely increasing their rates of contribution. Without going so far as to recommend that members should be encouraged to secede from the societies, I have no hesitation in saying that, if a member should voluntarily cease his payments, he ought to be struck off the books the moment such a course is allowable by the rules of the society, and it would be subversive of the society's best interests, indeed would be something like a fraud, to permit him to return except as a new member, paying an entrance fee and rate of contribution strictly in accordance with his then age.

31. The advantage gained by the societies from the secession of members will be understood when it is remembered that about 5,000 members, or a ninth of the whole, leave annually, and that many of these have received no sick pay whatever during the period of their membership, consequently they leave behind them, for the benefit of the members who remain in the society, all they have paid in less their proportion of the sums expended during their membership in satisfying the sick and death claims.

32. As a check upon the irregularities which have been pointed out, it is suggested that district secretaries should keep for each member a card resembling the cards used in this department,* and that the particulars respecting the members should be entered thereon; that the cards of unfinancial members should be kept apart, and that the branches should be required to pay the levies in accordance with the others, which of course would be those of the financial members. The district secretary would then have the affairs of the branches under his eye, would know when any member ought to be struck off the books, and whether a member received any benefit to which he was not entitled.

33. The number of parent societies in 1881 was 32, or the same as in the previous year. The highest number for which returns were ever received was 34, but in consequence of the Independent Order of Shepherds having ceased to exist in 1879, and an independent branch of the Ancient Order of Foresters having become amalgamated with the affiliated body in the same year, the number has since been reduced to that named.

34. The branches in 1881 numbered 759, or 11 more than in the previous year. The number in 1881 is the same as that in 1878, but it was exceeded in 1876 and in 1879.

35. The mean number of members during 1881 was 48,064, which is nearly 2,000 more than in 1880, and is a higher number than was ever previously returned.

36. In the year under review, the income of Friendly Societies was £180,460, and the expenditure was £155,225, the former being £8,473 more and the latter £10,719 more than in the previous year. The excess of income over expenditure was £25,235 in 1881, as against £27,481 in 1880.

37. The Report for 1880 showed an increase during the year in the total amount to the credit of funds of £27,481, distributed as follows:—Sick and Funeral Fund, £25,032; Incidental or Management Fund, £1,864; Widows and Orphans' Fund, £585. These increases are all somewhat higher than those in the year under review, as will be seen by the following table, which shows the amounts to the credit of the several funds at the end of the last two years, and the increases during the past year:—

AMOUNTS TO THE CREDIT OF FUNDS, 1880 AND 1881.

Year.	Sick and Funeral Fund.	Incidental or Management Fund.	Widows' and Orphans' Fund.	Total.
	£	£	£	£
1880	417,375	22,353	10,991	450,719
1881	440,956	23,564	11,434	475,954
Increase	23,581	1,211	443	25,235

* A copy of these cards was given in the Report on the Statistics of Friendly Societies, 1877 (Parliamentary Paper No. 4, Session 1879).

38. In the last year, the debts owed by the societies increased from £2,968 to £3,727, or by £759. Notwithstanding this, however, the amount to the credit of each member, after deducting debts, increased in the same twelve months from £9 14s. 4d. to £9 16s. 6d.

39. It has been shown that in 1881, as compared with 1880, the amount to the credit of the funds increased by £25,235. This increase is spread over all the parent societies, except the Grenville district, and Courts Ararat, Freedom, and Amherst, of the Ancient Order of Foresters, the Ancient Order of Shepherds, the St. Mary's Total Abstinence Society, the Protestant Mutual Benefit Society, and the Order of St. Andrew. In these societies, however, the diminution which took place in the amounts to the credit of the funds was only slight.

40. The contributions and levies to the Sick and Funeral Fund amounted to £59,880 and those to the Incidental Fund to £71,575 in 1881, as against £57,665 and £68,588 in the previous year. The total payments per member were £2 14s. 8d. in 1881, and £2 14s. 9d. in 1880, or about 1s. $0\frac{3}{4}$d. weekly in both years.

41. The admission, entrance and clearance fees amounted to £7,630, or 3s. 2d. per member, in 1881, as against £5,817, or 2s. 6d. per member, in 1880.

42. The amount invested at the end of 1881 was £415,086, as against £395,146 at the end of 1880 ; but notwithstanding this increase of capital, amounting to about £20,000, the interest received in 1881—viz., £22,577—was less by £35 than that in the previous year. This resulted from the average rate of interest having fallen from 5·79 per cent. to 5·44 per cent. I stated last year that it was probable so high a rate of interest as was then obtained for Friendly Societies' investments would not be maintained, and the result has shown the correctness of this opinion. It is likely that a still lower rate than that in 1881 will be shown in future years.

43. As in the year under review the number of members increased, whilst the total amount of interest received slightly declined, the amount of interest per member fell from 9s. 9d. to 9s. 5d. The latter, however, is a higher proportion than had been realised in any previous year except 1880.

44. At the end of 1881, 87 per cent. of the funds were invested, as against 88 per cent. at the end of 1880, and 91 per cent. at the end of 1879. This diminished proportion of invested moneys points to something unsatisfactory in the management of the societies. Of course a certain amount of money must always be kept in hand to meet current expenses, but it is manifest that as little as possible should be so retained. As the societies become richer the proportion which the uninvested funds bear to the whole ought to become less and less, instead of the reverse, as is now shown to be the case. I have already stated that the interest realised was in the proportion of 5.44 per cent. to the amount invested at the end of the year, but this proportion would be only 4·74 per cent. if calculated upon the total amount of the funds.

45. The members who received sick pay in 1881 numbered 8,554, or 178 in every thousand. The proportion of sick members to the total number of members attached to the societies was lower than in any other year since 1874 except 1877.

46. The increase in the proportion of sickness to the number of members in the societies has been pointed out by me from year to year. In the year under review the proportion was the highest ever known, and gave an average of $2\frac{7}{10}$ days per member (sick and well) more than the average prevailing 13 years previously. There seems to be no good reason for such an increase of sickness, the higher average age of members certainly not being sufficient to warrant it. It is possible that the supervision over the members who are in the receipt of sick pay is not so close now as formerly, and consequently that some malingering may take place. The following are the working days for which each member has, on the average, drawn sick pay during each of the last fourteen years :—

	Days of Sickness per Member.		Days of Sickness per Member.
1868	5·1	1875	7·0
1869	5·1	1876	6·9
1870	5·4	1877	6·7
1871	5·6	1878	7·3
1872	6·0	1879	7·7
1873	6·4	1880	7·6
1874	6·5	1881	7·8

47. The sick pay in 1881 averaged £1 0s. 6d. per member, as against £1 in 1880. In 1879 the sick pay averaged 1d. per member more than in 1881, but that was the only year in which the rate was as high as it was in 1881.

48. The average weekly rate paid to sick members, both in 1880 and 1881, was 15s. 10d., which was lower than the rate in any of the previous years. I pointed out in my last Report that the average rate being low indicates that a large proportion of the payments are at reduced rates, consequent upon long periods of sickness.

49. The members who died in 1881 numbered 571, or 146 more than in the previous year, and 104 more than in 1878, which next to the year under review, was the one in which the greatest mortality occurred. The death rate in 1881 was 11·88 per 1,000 members, or much above that in any other year. The following are the death rates in each of the last fourteen years :—

	Deaths per 1,000 Members.		Deaths per 1,000 Members.		Deaths per 1,000 Members.
1868	6·50	1873	8·21	1878	10·23
1869	7·51	1874	9·26	1879	9·84
1870	8·68	1875	9·30	1880	9·23
1871	6·72	1876	9·84	1881	11·88
1872	8·11	1877	10·20

50. The deaths of members' wives numbered 288, or 70 more than in 1880. The number was not so high by 3 as in 1878, but was higher than in any other year. The proportion of deaths of wives to members was 5·99 per 1,000, which was never exceeded in any year except 1878. The following are the proportions in the last fourteen years :—

	Deaths of Wives per 1,000 Members.		Deaths of Wives per 1,000 Members.		Deaths of Wives per 1,000 Members.
1868	3·77	1873	4·01	1878	6·37
1869	3·96	1874	5·32	1879	5·23
1870	3·13	1875	3·70	1880	4·73
1871	3·11	1876	5·20	1881	5·99
1872	3·56	1877	4·48

51. Funeral donations in 1881 amounted to £13,276, or to £3,193 more than in 1880, also to much more than in any other year. The payment per member was 5s. 6d., which is the highest proportion in the last fourteen years, as will be seen by the following figures :—

	s. d.		s. d.		s. d.
1869	3 10	1874	4 9	1879	4 10
1870	4 1	1875	4 6	1880	4 4
1871	3 4	1876	4 11	1881	5 6
1872	3 11	1877	5 2

52. Omitting medical attendance, which, since it is paid from the Incidental Fund, is not classed as a benefit, although it is in reality a very important one, the benefits consist of sick pay and funeral donations. These together amounted in 1881 to £62,495, or an average of £1 6s. per member.

53. The payments for medical attendance and medicine in the year amounted in the aggregate to £49,716, or an average of £1 0s. 8d. per member. The total amount is higher by £2,363 than in 1880, and the average is higher by a penny than in that year. The latter, however, is the same as in 1879 and 1878.

54. The expenses of management amounted in 1881 to £25,891, or an average of 10s. 9d. per member. This average was exceeded in each of the three preceding years and was equalled in 1876, the highest average reached being 11s. 1d. per member in 1878. The figures are not comparable with those relating to any of the years prior to 1876, as until then the cost of district management was not given.

55. The following figures show that in the last six years the cost of managing Friendly Societies has ranged from 14·35 per cent. to 15·55 per cent. of their revenue, the lowest proportion being in the year under review ; also that during the whole period the cost of management has, upon the average, been equal to 14·75 per cent. of the revenue :—

	Proportion of Cost of Management to Revenue, per cent.		Proportion of Cost of Management to Revenue, per cent.
1876	15·08	1879	14·54
1877	14·46	1880	14·54
1878	15·55	1881	14·35

56. One society, not formed on the ordinary basis, and consequently not having accounts capable of being included with those in the tables appended to this Report, furnished returns for 1881. This was the Congregational Ministers' Provident Society, which came into existence in March 1869 with a capital already accumulated of £1,009 17s. 4d., to be augmented by such future sums as might be raised by "collections, entrance fees, subscriptions, compensatory payments, fines, donations, bequests, and a third part of the interest derived from capital," for the purpose of creating funds whence a sum should be payable on the death of a member and an annual pension for life on attaining sixty years of age. After providing for the expenses of management, a third of the interest derived from investments is added to the capital, the remaining two-thirds being appropriated annually to the Pension and Decease Funds. The sum available from the Pension Fund in any year is divided among the claimants in the ratio of their respective ages. The Decease Fund is divided in a similar manner among the representatives of all the members who may die during the year.

57. It is obvious that the precise amount of pension a member may expect in any one year after reaching sixty cannot be determined beforehand, it being dependent upon the profits derived from investments during that year, the number of claimants and their relative ages. This is also true of the sums payable at death.

58. The following statement has been prepared from the account sent in by that society for the year 1881 :—

CONCLUSION.

59. In conclusion I may observe that I have made enquiries of some of the leading members of Friendly Societies, with the view of ascertaining whether sufficient advantage is derived from the Friendly Societies' Statistics to compensate for the trouble and expense attendant upon their annual collection, preparation, and publication, and in reply I am assured that, as a means of checking improper practices in dealing with the funds, they are most valuable, the probability being that many an irregularity would be committed did not a strong impression exist that these statistics would be the means of bringing it to light. The valuations give an account of the position of a society at a given time, but the statistics contain a record of its proceedings between the periods of valuation, and show whether the funds are honestly and economically administered and kept properly invested, precautions without which the valuations would be of little use. This being the case, I believe there will be but one opinion as to the desirability of continuing the issue of the Statistics of Friendly Societies.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your most obedient servant,
HENRY HEYLYN HAYTER,
Government Statist.

The Honorable the Chief Secretary.

APPENDICES.

APPENDIX A.

VALUATION OF COURT ARARAT, A.O.F.

Letter from the Government Statist to the Secretary of Court Ararat forwarding results of the Actuary's Valuation.

Office of the Government Statist,
Melbourne, 10th November 1881.

SIR,

I have the honor to forward herewith a copy of the Report of the Actuary to this department on the condition of your society on the 31st December 1880, and an abstract of the results of his valuation as required by the Friendly Societies Act 1877, section 13 (1*e*).

2. After giving due weight to the experience of the society during the preceding quinquennial period, and making proper allowances therefor, the Actuary finds that, on the basis of that experience, the value of the future liabilities in respect to sickness and death-claims, exceeds the sum of the values of the prospective income from the present members applicable to these benefits, and of the accumulated funds, by £206 14s. 2d.

3. This deficiency he attributes solely to inadequate rates of contribution.

4. In order to place the society on a sound footing, he recommends that the deficiency should be made good, and that the future contributions to the assurance funds be made equivalent to the liability incurred.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
H. H. HAYTER,
Government Statist,

The Secretary, Court Ararat A.O.F., Ararat.

REPORT.—Explanation of the Principles upon which the Valuation has been made, and Observations on the Condition of the Society.

Established at Ararat in 1862. Average age of members, 1st January 1876, 39 years; 31st December 1880, 42½ years. Sixteen exceeded 49 years; eight, 54 years; and three were 60 and upwards.

1. The ratio of the amount of interest derived from the portion of the Sick and Funeral Fund invested to the whole of that fund during each and all of the five preceding years was :—

   For the year ended the 31st December 1876, £5 5s. 0d. per cent.
   „ „ „ „ 1877, £6 1s. 5d. „
   „ „ „ „ 1878, £5 4s. 5d. „
   „ „ „ „ 1879, £8 8s. 9d. „
   „ „ „ „ 1880, £5 13s. 0d. „

   } For the five years ended the 31st December 1880, £6 4s. 2d. per cent.

2. The rate of interest used in the construction of the Valuation Tables was 5 per cent.

3. The rates of sickness and mortality, taken as the basis of the Valuation Tables, were the M. U. Experience, England, 1866–70.

4. From the investigation made into the experience of the society during the five preceding years, it is found that the sickness has been less by 20 per cent., the withdrawals greater by 174 per cent., than the corresponding rates of the Standard Table. Only one member died during the quinquennium, at the age of 38, and two wives, aged 37 and 45 respectively; no comparison in respect to mortality can therefore properly be made. The mean duration of membership of members withdrawing from, and remaining in, the society was 6¾ and 10¼ years respectively. While the experience of sickness has been 20 per cent. less in the aggregate, the average sickness under the scale of allowance of the first six months has been slightly greater, and under the second six months' scale 7 per cent. less; but there was an absence altogether of sickness at the third six months and after scale.

5. To adapt such Tables to the special circumstances of the society, the results derived therefrom have been thus modified :—Allowances have been made on account of members leaving by arrears, and the liability on account of the sickness under the first and second scale of pay only has been calculated (see paragraph 4).

6. The value of the liabilities of the society, on account of the probable sickness after 70, has been thus estimated :—In view of the uncertainty as to the quantum of sickness likely to be experienced after 70, the value of a deferred annuity of 2s. 6d. a week, payable to every member from that age, has been given in lieu of pay in sickness at 20s., 10s., and 5s.

7. The reduced sick allowances, payable during continued disablement, have been treated as shown in the summary.

8. The values of the prospective income and outgo, on account of members more than fourteen weeks in arrears, have been excluded from the valuation.

9. After appropriating 1s. 3d. per member per quarter to the Funeral Fund, of the remaining receipts from contributions, initiation and clearance fees and fines, ⅔ are allotted to the Sick Fund and ⅓ to the Medical, Management, and Incidental Expense Fund. The past five years' experience of the society show that this is an adequate provision for future medical and management expenses.

10. The deficiency is believed to be owing to inadequate contributions and initiation fees. To enable the society to continue to discharge its obligations, I recommend that such portion of the deficiency as is due to inadequacy of rates during the past operations of the society be made good, and that the scale of contributions of the present and future members be made equivalent to the benefits claimable.

11. Under laws Nos. 21, 26, 27, 28, the following are substantially the contributions payable, at the different ages of entry, to the several funds :—

Ages.	Total Entrance Fee.	Total Annual Contributions.	Medical, Management, and Incidental Expense Fund.		Sick Fund.		Funeral Fund.
			Entrance Fee.	Annual Contributions.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Contributions.	Annual Contributions.
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
18 to 28 ...	1 1 0	2 18 6	0 12 7	1 12 1	0 8 5	1 1 5
28 to 35 ...	1 7 6	3 2 10	0 16 6	1 14 8	0 11 0	1 3 2
35 to 37 ...	1 12 6	3 7 2	0 19 6	1 17 4	0 13 0	1 4 10	0 5 0
37 to 40 ...	2 0 0		1 4 0		0 16 0

The average age at which the present members became entitled to full benefits was 33 years. In order that there might be no deficiency at the end of 1880, on account of prospective death claims, after making the necessary allowances, each person joining at that age should have contributed to the Funeral Fund the sum of 8s. 6d. per annum, instead of 5s., as provided by law No. 21, at all ages.

The annual contribution to the Sick Fund, at the same age, should have been £1 6s. 4d., in addition to the prescribed entrance fee, instead of £1 3s. 2d. The contributions in this case were therefore inadequate; to the Funeral Fund to the extent of over 41 per cent., and to the Sick Fund of over 12 per cent.

12. The framers of law No. 28 have evidently misapprehended the object of graduating rates of contributions and initiation fees. The older a member is when joining, the greater is the liability incurred by the society on his behalf in respect to death and sickness claims, and the fewer, besides, will be the number of annual payments of contributions which he may be expected to make as an equivalent therefor. The amount of such contributions should consequently increase rapidly as the initiation age increases. No such increased liability, however, is incurred with advancing age, as far as the Medical, Management, and Incidental Expense Fund is concerned, and a uniform payment at all ages could not therefore be objected to, in this case, on the score of equity. The manner in which members' payments are apportioned between the respective funds, under law 28, serves to materiall neutralize the effect of the existing graduation in respect to the Sick Fund, as is shown by the above Table.

Letter from the Actuary for valuing Friendly Societies to the Government Statist, explaining the manner in which the enquiry into the condition of Court Ararat has been conducted.

Office of the Government Statist,
Melbourne, 29th September 1882.

SIR,

In your Report on Friendly Societies for 1880, paragraph 22, you published a description, which I furnished by your instructions, of the valuation forms prepared during the middle of 1881, and an account of the purposes to which they were to be applied. Therein I gave a brief explanation of the nature of the investigation it was, in my opinion, indispensable the valuer should undertake in respect to each branch of a society upon the condition of which he had been required to report in order to produce a trustworthy valuation.

2. On the occasion of publishing, as required by the Act, the Report on the condition, and the Abstract of the result of the valuation, of Court Ararat, A.O.F., the first society to submit its affairs to the department for examination, the only one whose financial position was determined before the close of the year under review, and upon which you are therefore under statutory obligation to report now, I think it will be acceptable to members of societies generally to receive an account in some detail of the mode of proceeding adopted in this case, in that of the lodges of the Manchester Unity, recently completed, and which it is intended to continue in all the valuations effected in the Actuarial Branch of this department.

3. The principle which underlies the mode of procedure about to be illustrated is the assumption that the ratio of the disbursements on account of death and sickness claims, and the receipts from contributions, to the number of members actually at risk during the five years immediately preceding the date of the valuation, will serve to show, more nearly than any other measure that might be applied, each society's probable future outgo and income.

4. It is necessary to point out that Court Ararat, although nominally a branch of the Ancient Order of Foresters, occupies quite an independent position, having no connection, except in the matter of clearances, with any other court of that society, all its funeral, as well as its sick, claims being discharged from its own resources. The absolute necessity of estimating the financial position of a society by the measure of its own experience would have been brought out with greater clearness had it been at present permissible to exhibit the operation of the principle in a wide range of cases, in many respects dissimilar, and affording therefore many instructive points of comparison, as presented by the numerous branches and districts of the M.U., than it is possible to do in one isolated society such as that now made public. It will be well, therefore, to bear in mind that the observations which follow are intended to have a general as well as a particular application.

5. It will be known from your preceding Reports that we possess in the department a card for every person who was at any time a member of any society in Victoria since the 1st January 1876,* upon which is recorded his name, year of birth, occupation, date of entry into his branch, the number of weeks' sickness experienced, the rate of pay received during such disablement, and, in short, every particular affecting him and his wife, if married, which the secretary is required to furnish year by year according to Experience Return (B).

6. A close examination of the cards of this court, and of Return B for each year, showed whether such particulars as were given by the secretary had been properly entered, whether the information so supplied possessed the requisite accuracy and completeness, and whether the number of cards representing the actual membership on the 31st December 1880, after allowance had been made for all entries and exits during the quinquennium, agreed with the number given by the secretary as prescribed at the foot of the last annual Financial Return (A). (It may be remarked here that, owing apparently to neglect on the part of the secretaries in reporting, as they always should be careful to do on their Experience Returns, all cases of discontinued membership, such agreement is seldom met with, the number of cards being in most cases greater than the number of members so given.)

7. A list of the inaccuracies was then forwarded to the secretary for correction, and, in this case (all courts of Foresters charging rates of contributions increasing to some extent with the age of the member at initiation), he was required to send also a full list of members and the rate so paid by each, distinguishing the portion thereof assigned under the rules to the Sick and Funeral and to the Medical and Management Funds respectively.

8. At whatever time an examination into the condition of a society is made, the claims of a certain proportion of the members will usually be found to be in abeyance under the rules through over-due contributions, and although some of these may, by paying up these amounts, restore themselves, in a prescribed interval thereafter, to a position of effective membership, yet others will probably allow themselves to come in the meantime into the same state of suspension ; and it having been decided to exclude the prospective income and outgo (both of which must of necessity be subjected to the same treatment) in all such cases, the secretary was requested to furnish also a list of all such "unfinancial" members.

9. On Form D† were entered, besides other particulars, the funds to the credit of the Sick and Funeral Fund of the society at the beginning and end of, and the interest received during, each of the five years. Investments being assumed to be made and the interest received twice a year, the ratio per cent. of such interest in any year to the total estimated funds at the end of the first quarter gave the rate of profit that year from investments, while similarly the ratio of the whole sum derived during the five years from investments to the aggregate of such estimated funds gave the correct average quinquennial rate. This latter result, compared with the several annual rates in respect to regularity, or fluctuations from the mean, and to the upward or downward tendency exhibited at the close of the period, determines in the case of each society the rate to be used as the basis of the series of Valuation Tables applicable to the approximate admeasurement of the value of its assurance contracts.

10. Undivided attention was then given during several days to the calculation of these Tables. I may mention that, in the process of computing this set of Tables, the logarithms being required of the numbers living and dying, and of the rates of sickness under full and reduced sick pay at each year of age according to Ratcliffe's Life and Sickness Table, and these having been already tabulated in connection with the production of the four per cent. Tables issued from this department in 1880,‡ the slips containing them were immediately available for use in combination with fresh slips similarly ruled, upon which were entered the like functions of the several rates of interest used upon this and subsequent occasions in connection with the Manchester Unity ; the labor and time of construction were, owing to this circumstance and to the fact that the sickness tables were made to terminate with the 70th year, considerably reduced.

11. Immediately on their completion, the Tables were applied to the calculation of the value of the probable future contributions and claims in respect to the effective members of the court at each age, and the several results entered in the proper columns on Form F (unadjusted results). As an equivalent to the extremely uncertain amount of expenditure for sickness after 70, the value of a deferred life annuity has been given, fixed at a weekly rate which will, I think, seeing that full and half sick pay up to that age have alone in this case been provided for, not over-estimate the liability.

12. By means of the information contained on the cards, Form C was then filled in. This gave the number of members at each age in the society at the beginning of each of the five years, of such members' wives, the number admitted by initiation and clearance, the number who left by death, clearance, and discontinuance of membership, the number of weeks' assisted sickness experienced, and the rate of pay received therein.

13. On a subsidiary sheet, a copy of which it is unnecessary to give, were entered the aggregate number of persons at risk at the groups of ages 18–20, 21–25, 26–30, &c., and the aggregate number of events (i.e., of deaths, weeks of sickness, discontinuances) which fell to the share of each group during the five years so passed under review.

14. On a second subsidiary sheet were entered the number of such events, obtained by calculation, which would have happened to the same persons, had their experience been in all respects the same as that of the members of the M.U. in England during 1866–70.

15. The ratio of the total number of deaths, &c., to the aggregate number at risk during the five years at the respective groups of ages gave the rates of mortality, &c., which were entered on Form E; and the like information, being the result of the application to these persons of the English M.U. Experience extracted from the second subsidiary sheet, was entered in red ink on the same form immediately under the corresponding figures relating to the branch.

16. These several results were then compared, and the precise amount per cent. by which the rates of the branch were greater or less than those of the English Experience were entered on Form E, in order to indicate where, to what extent, and in what direction, it would be necessary to modify the values contained in the several columns of Form F.

17. Three Adjustment Tables, applicable respectively to the value of the annual contributions (col. 4, Form F), of the sums payable at death (cols. 7 and 8), and of the sickness allowance (col. 15), corresponding to maximum rates of modification at every age from 18 to 70 (where they merge, by a gradual approach, into the original Tables) having been prepared in the first instance, the figures representing the amount of the divergence, whether in excess or defect from the rates of the Standard Table, guided me in the determination of the proper modifications to be made age by age to the several Adjustment Tables before they were applied to bring out the results approximating as closely as was considered expedient to the quantities which would have been obtained had the Valuation Tables been originally based on the society's own experience. With regard to the allowance made on account of discontinuance of membership, I may say, generally, referring to all the valuations now made, that I have not thought it prudent to calculate upon the occurrence in the future of more than one-half the ascertained quinquennial rates in societies containing even the largest membership.

18. The Adjustment Tables so modified were then applied, the resulting quantities entered opposite each age in columns 5, 9, and 16, on Form F, and the respective totals, adjusted and unadjusted, furnished the figures which are found in the "Summary of the Results of the Valuation of Court Ararat."

19. To the "Summary" and "Balance-sheet" have been appended a brief explanation of the principles upon which the valuation has been made and observations on the condition of the society. I do not think any further remarks are needed in order to show generally what information should, in my opinion, be supplied in order to produce reliable valuation, and the kind of information it is intended to furnish in all future cases. I would, however, recommend that, should it be found on examination I have overlooked any point with respect to the present position or past operations of societies, with which it is thought the members ought to be made acquainted, societies be invited to notify the same to the Government Statist.

20. It will be noticed that, though the departures from this court during the quinquennium have exceeded the English rates by 174 per cent, yet the average age of members has increased by 3½ years. This shows that the migrations have been principally from among the younger members. In my memorandum on the condition of the Manchester Unity,* the paragraph treating of this branch of the subject, in connection with the facts disclosed in the examination of that society, and the publication of which, in order to avoid misapprehension here, it is advisable to anticipate, is to the following effect:—"The Order was of course five years older at the end than it was at the beginning of the quinquennium, and on a cursory glance it might be perhaps anticipated that the average age of the members should have increased at the same or at nearly the same rate. This expectation would be found to be realised, provided members neither left nor joined during the period; or provided, as each dropped out, another of the same age immediately took his place; in either of these cases there would be an advance of just five years in the average age. Such a state of things will, however, seldom be met with in practice. The figures given in columns 6 and 7 serve to elucidate this point. The society has grown older by five years, and the members, as a whole, by a year and a half; in some districts the increase has been as great as two years and three quarters, in others as low as three-quarters of a year; while in some individual lodges, a fact which might without due consideration appear anomalous, the members have actually grown younger, in some cases by three years, in others by one and two years. It is scarcely necessary to explain that this peculiar result has arisen from the fact that the place of those who have left by death or arrears of contributions has been taken by younger men."

21. With respect to the occupations followed by the members of this court, a subject, it may be seen, I have not touched upon, there appears to be a tolerably even distribution of callings, no one class preponderating to any noticeable extent. This point is, however, only of importance as serving to indicate the cause of any excess, or the reverse, of sickness and mortality, through the presence of an undue proportion of persons whose avocations are more than usually hazardous and detrimental to health, or of those whose occupations and habits are conducive to health and longevity; provision is, however, made in the mode of valuation adopted for making due allowance for the effect on the funds of such abnormal rates.

22. It may be well to observe with respect to the deficiency shown in the case of Court Ararat, and the recommendations made in relation thereto, that when the periodic payments to the Sick and Funeral Fund are raised, the deficiency will be reduced to the extent of the aggregate value, estimated at the same point of time as the present investigation, the 31st December 1880, of the additions which may be made to the contributions of the present members.

23. I think it proper to add that, though this society is doubtless to be commended for promptitude in submitting its affairs to the test of an examination on the present occasion, it is necessary, on the other hand, to state that the implicit condition attached to the actuarial certificate to the sufficiency of the rates of contributions, in the absence of which a society is unable to obtain registration in Victoria, required that this step should have been taken eight years previously.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your most obedient servant,
EVAN F. OWEN,
Actuary for Valuing Friendly Societies.

The Government Statist.

* This memorandum, together with an abstract of the valuations of the Manchester Unity, will be appended to the Report of the Government Statist for 1882.

* The payments from the branches to the parent society, and vice versâ, are not carried into the total tables, the amounts set down in the returns of the parent society as receipts for "Levies" both in the Sick and Funeral and in the Incidental Funds being the sum of the amounts shown in the branch returns as expenditure for Funeral Fund and Management Levies respectively. The "Funeral donations," being paid by the parent society, do not appear in the branch returns.

[1] This branch actually paid five quarterly levies to the district during the year; the last (£2 8s. 4d.) paid at the end of December is not included in the above, as the receipt was not acknowledged in the district returns.

NOTE.—Where the minus sign (—) occurs the amount against which it is placed has been borrowed from the other fund.

* This society pays the Funeral assessment out of the Incidental Fund. To enable a comparison to be made with other societies, the amount of the Funeral assessment paid by each lodge has been deducted from the contributions to the Incidental Fund and added to the contributions of the Sick and Funeral Fund, and the Funeral assessments are shown as though paid out of the Sick and Funeral Fund. The payments from the branches to the parent society, and vice versâ, are not carried into the total tables, the amounts set down in the returns of the parent society as receipts for "Levies" both in the Sick and Funeral and in the Incidental Funds being the sum of the amounts shown in the branch returns as expenditure for Funeral Fund and Management Levies respectively, and the amount shown as "Funeral donations" paid by the parent society being the sum of the amounts entered by the branches as Receipts—Funeral donations.——[1] Funeral donation on account of 1880 paid to the Incidental Fund of the Ballarat Lodge.

NOTE.—Where the minus sign (—) occurs the amount against which it is placed has been borrowed from the other fund.

* The payments from the branches to the parent society, and vice versâ, are not carried into the total tables, the amounts set down in the returns of the parent society as receipts for "Levies" both in the Sick and Funeral and in the Incidental Funds being the sum of the amounts shown in the branch returns as expenditure for Funeral Fund and Management Levies respectively, and the amount shown as "Funeral donations" paid by the parent society being the sum of the amounts entered by the branches as Receipts—Funeral donations.——[1] This represents amount of the Sick and Funeral Fund of the Court "Star of the West," which was paid in trust to the district when the court closed in 1880; £40 1s. 5d. has now been paid to the Incidental Fund, and the remainder not accounted for.

NOTE.—Where the minus sign (—) occurs the amount against which it is placed has been borrowed from the other fund.

* The payments from the branches to the parent society, and vice versâ, are not carried into the total tables, the amounts set down in the returns of the parent society as receipts for "Levies" both in the Sick and Funeral and in the Incidental Funds being the sum of the amounts shown in the branch returns as expenditure for Funeral Fund and Management Levies respectively, and the amount shown as "Funeral donations" paid by the parent society being the sum of the amounts entered by the branches as Receipts—Funeral donations.—[1] Donations to sick members.—[2] The court returns and the district do not agree by 14s. 4d.; most likely the difference has occurred from the courts and the district not balancing the same day.—[3] Sick pay on account of members of Bendigo district.—[4] Forwarded to other courts on account of brothers, £5 14s. 7½d.; trustees' salary, £9 9s.

* The payments from the branches to the parent society, and vice versâ, are not carried into the total tables, the amounts set down in the returns of the parent society as receipts for "Levies" both in the Sick and Funeral and in the Incidental Funds being the sum of the amounts shown in the branch returns as expenditure for District Funeral Fund and District Levies respectively. The "Funeral donations" are paid by the parent society, and do not appear in the returns of the branches.—[1] Trustees' expenses.—[2] Trustees' salary.

NOTE.—Where the minus sign (—) occurs the amount against which it is placed has been borrowed from the other fund.

* The payments from the branches to the parent society, and vice versâ, are not carried into the total tables, the amounts set down in the returns of the parent society as receipts for "Levies" both in the Sick and Funeral and in the Incidental Funds being the sum of the amounts shown in the branch returns as expenditure for Funeral Fund and Management Levies respectively, and the amount shown as "Funeral donations" paid by the parent society being the sum of the amounts entered by the branches as Receipts—Funeral donations.——[1] Funeral donations to branches in other colonies.——[2] This amount appears to have been transferred to the Incidental Fund by incorrectly bringing forward the balance due to the Sick and Funeral Fund.——[3] Trustees' expenses, 10s.; balance due by the Incidental Fund at the end of 1880, £17 18s. 3d., included under the head of "Other receipts"—Incidental Fund.
